Spotlight With The Junior Class President: Phoebe Knox

As your junior year is coming to an end, how would you describe your experience as Junior Class President? What are some skills that you have gained from your responsibilities this year? I have absolutely loved being Junior Class President. This position has allowed me to find a whole new love for my class, as well as many incredible opportunities to branch out and form better connections with the people in my grade. My responsibilities as Junior Class President have also taught me to come out of my shell and be a more present person in my school, as well as mastering tasks like budgeting for events, emailing back-and-forth with venues, and when something doesn't go as planned, I am able to make the best out of the situation.

How has your prior experience in ASB prepared you for the role of Junior Class President? How did your expectations of the role compare with the realities of your duties as President? Since this was my first time as class president, it was definitely a big shift from my previous roles in the class. During my freshman year in ASB, when we were put into spirit week committees, I always picked the dance or decorations committee because I loved the creative control of the job, which is what led me to want to run for Junior Class President. I so badly wanted to plan prom-the experience I had gained from helping plan dances and pick out the decor made planning prom a lot easier because I had already worked with photobooths, DJs, etc., so taking on prom felt like the most natural yet exciting next step. Even though I've definitely had to devote a lot more time and energy to Prom than the events I worked on in the past, I have enjoyed every minute of it. I love the idea that something I planned and envisioned so particularly could make others excited, and moreso that it will be something people will be happy to look back on as they grow.

Which parts of your duties were you most excited to work on before you earned your role and which job have you had the most fun with?

I would have to say I was looking forward to planning prom the most. Planning events has always been my thing, whether it is school dances or just dinner with friends- i love coordinating events. Getting to have control over what goes on, as well as, when it comes to school events like Prom, getting to listen to the opinions of my peers and incorporate their ideas with mine feels exciting. Whether it be in movies or hearing about someone you know's prom, I feel like it typically never looks or sounds as fun as it should be, and I really wanted to make prom something special for our school. Even though planning prom is still one of the most exciting duties I have had, the one that I would say I have had the most fun with is the pep rally. As class president it is part of my job to purchase the pep rally decorations, set up for the pep rally, but most importantly to make sure my grade is spirited and has fun. While this might seem like a small task, it has brought me more joy than any other job because I have got to be a part of my grade coming together, and seeing how excited and competitive they get at the pep rally just gives me such pure happiness.

You have the honor of planning many events this year such really great group of people who were able to guide and support me through the process. With any job really, regardless of if you have seen someone do it, you will have a different approach or your own take on it, so I think that even if I did get to witness the planning of Masque and Prom from recent predecessors, I most likely wouldn't have changed the way I went about planning these events.

By the time this interview is released Prom will have just passed, what can you say about how the entire process of planning prom has unfolded this far? When did the planning process begin and what are some of your highlights from the process? With planning prom I am the most excited about the little decisions I get to make whether it's about the floral arrangements or the ticket design, it is such a creative and specific process that I have found to be so passionate about. I originally started planning prom the summer before my junior year. I had made a list of venues that I liked but I really didn't start to actually plan prom until school started my junior year. I worked with Mrs. Snyder and we made list of venues, we contacted all of them and then we ended up touring to the best two which was the Westlake Village Inn and another one in LA but when I toured the Westlake

Village Inn, I fell in love with it; it was exactly what I had been looking for with that and from the months I spent trying to find the perfect venue that I thought everyone would love, it turned out to be the the Westlake Village Inn. It really just fit with everything I was wanting in a venue, and I am so beyond grateful to have landed on a venue that I truly do love and I hope the charm of the Westlake Village Inn makes everyone enjoy its beauty just as much as I do. The entire process of planning prom has definitely consisted of many stressful nights because I am trying to make 200 students all happy which is a lot of pressure but I do hope that everyone recognizes the amount of effort and hard work that I have put into this so that everyone has a memorable and enjoyable prom. This entire process of planning such a large event has had many fun moments that I am glad I got to experience, like touring venues and deciding on the food served. Being the one who gets to make these decisions has been so exciting and definitely brings out the adult in me. Overall, the best part of this experience has been watching something that I have spent so many months planning finally come to life. The other day I was printing out the Prom posters and I think that was the most excited I have been. It was just genuine happiness that I felt when seeing the posters because I realized that the countless days I have spent planning this event is finally coming to an end and I finally get to see how this event turns out.

as Masque and Prom that are happening for the first time in a few years since the first covid outbreak; has this fact made it more difficult for you since you have not gotten to see your recent predecessors make their prom and masque come to life? Planning Masque and Prom with only having watched one previous junior class president do so was definitely very stressful but I was able to work alongside a

WHAT'S NEW: THE 2022 WORLD CUP

JULIEN LESCURE
EDITOR

We've been waiting 4 long years for the 2022 Soccer World Cup and it is finally here. The 22nd World Cup running will be held in Qatar making it the first ever World Cup to be held in the Arabic world. 64 games will be played in 28 days in 8 uniquely designed stadiums around the capital of Qatar, Doha. 32 across-the-world teams will fight for a place in the final held on December 18th. Traditionally, the World Cup takes place during the summer month of July, but FIFA reconsidered the dates due to the extreme heat Qatar is known to face. To avoid the 120 degree weather that could cause fatal issues, the dates were moved to November 21st through December 18th. At the moment, 29 out of 209 teams have qualified for the tournament and 3 more games will be held in June to determine the last participants. The 6th-ranked Italy found themselves eliminated in a shocking loss against North Macedonia. But as expected the reigning champs and the number 3 seed France made it in with high chances of winning. The team presents a strong squad that we saw excel in 2018. Mbappe is joined in the front with Atoine Grizman and Karim Benzema making for an explosive offense. N'Golo Kante and Paul Pogba are holding down the fort in midfield and anchoring the back line is Raphael Varane. Deschamps is there to manage the whole thing and will be bringing back strong strategies and leadership. France may have the capability to repeat history but some teams still have a lot to offer.

As they always do, Brazil made it to the World Cup as well with a 1-0 win over Columbia. Being the number one seed and currently the favorite among top contenders, everyone is expecting a lot from the South Americans. They were also undefeated in the qualifications and barely even let the ball into their half. Tite, Brazil's head coach has been rebalancing and configuring his team to be at its full potential. With Neymar's unmatched speed and dribbling skills and Vinicius Junior's goal scoring partnership with Benzema, the offense will bring strong assets to the field. The premier league player Fabinho in the midfield and Allison in the goal will keep balls out of the net and at Brazil's feet. There is no doubt Brazil and France will bring on a show but other competitors still have a chance.

Other top contenders include Spain, Argentina, Germany, England and Belgium. These are all teams that could easily make it to the round of 16. Argentina has a strong enough program to beat France with some luck and a good mindset. Germany and Belgium will most likely end up together in a close match. Although Belgium may be ranked No. 2 in the world, Germany's quick transition play style could catch them off guard. Seeing that England made it to Semifinals in 2018 and finals in the 2021 Euro Cup, they have been building up for this tournament and are prepared to win. Spain's new generation in the midfield, Alvaro Morata attacking in the front, and their experienced back line brings in an overall built team. Spain could very well win the World Cup all over again with the right leadership and mindset.

A Learning Opportunity For The Malibu Sharks Surf Team

This past weekend of April 23-24, The Malibu Sharks Surf Team competed in the Scholastic Surf Team State championships. All athletes spent the day in Huntington beach competing for their Surf Teams spot in the next upcoming heats. With tough conditions and rough waves, some athletes in the longboarding heats resorted to staying on the inside and catching smaller waves. The Malibu Sharks faced some competitors including Westlake, Ventura, San Clemente, and many other teams hungry for victory. From 8 am, the Sharks competed with other teams. Thankfully, it was quite sunny (not like the many other comps).

Although we didn't win any trophies this time, we sure did try our best. On the Malibu Sharks Surf Team website Coach John Cross said, "I'm not going to sugar coat this - we got crushed! It was a quick, sad day for our surfers and our team, and another tough lesson in being prepared. I am extremely proud of our athletes, you all did your best and gave it your all, I know you did." Most of our competitors where you used to these types of conditions where as here in Malibu, we aren't really familiar with big heavy waves. In the end, it proved too difficult for most of our surfers to handle 6' closeout sets and a ripping current that pushed the great majority of competitors out of position.

Coach John also said, "Facing this team was like battling Goliath, but we couldn't channel our inner David." Meaning that we really were the underdogs, but we mustn't let this faze or stop us from our upcoming victories. Our surf team is onlyww getting better. Congratulations to the Women's Longboard team for defeating Point Loma, especially Whitney, who won the very first round heat with outstanding cross steps and some pretty smooth turns. Another shout out to Jaden for stepping up at the last minute to compete in Bodyboard, where he and Tristan performed admirably.

Overall our whole team gave it our best. Every teammate was there for each other to show support for our team. Whatever you accomplish in life, doing it to the best of your skills reaps enormous benefits. And it is through these types of competitions that we can improve ourselves. We shouldn't let these outcomes get the best of us because behind every loss there is a win.

Spotlight with the Junior Class President

Mathea Lasky

Have you gotten loads of help from your fellow students or teachers for any of the specific tasks and events you have worked on this year, or has your role more so comprised of solo work? I have had amazing help throughout the entire year from my teachers and advisers, as well as from my friends. Mrs. Snyder, who collaborated with me to plan prom, and Mrs. Martinez, who has gone above and beyond all year to make much of the solo-work involved in my role more bearable, have both given me guidance I would not trade for anything. My friends have also been incredibly helpful through the planning of every event, especially during the time I was planning prom. Whether it is an idea I have and am not sure about or if I am looking for student input on what they want at prom, I am so lucky to have such a good group of friends who I can count on for support. While this position does consist of me working with advisors, there is a lot of solo work that goes into it. For Masque, I very much felt like I was a puppet master, setting up auditions, getting people to help with stage crew, organize programs, etc., I am so grateful for the help I had but at the same time, with directing a whole talent show, there is only so much help you can get so a lot of it did turn into solo work. One of my close friends who is currently in ASB with me, Estelle Shah, has been my right-hand with every event I have been in charge of and I can't imagine what it would have been like without her. She has listened to me rant whenever I got stressed while planning, helped me decide on details for prom, toured venues with me, was assistant director of Masque, consistently helped me with all the junior related pep rally stuff, and overall has been my biggest supporter for Masque and Prom; I am so lucky to have had her help. Even though this position consists of a lot of solo work, the best part of being Junior Class President is collaborating with others and getting to listen to their ideas and be creative with them.

Is there anything you wish you had known before becoming Junior Class President?

What is some of the advice that you are passing on to the next Junior Class President? Something I wish I knew before becoming junior class president is to really plan for when you are going to do something. I was lucky enough to have advisors to guide me and started planning for everything pretty early on, but for any future junior class president I definitely advise you to also start early because it will relieve so much of your stress and anxiety. Another thing to remember is to make sure to enjoy the process and don't overthink too much because if you are really passionate about the role, then everything will turn out great. My biggest piece of advice is to just have fun. This is one of the most exciting times in your highschool career so enjoy it while it lasts, because it really is the best ASB position.

Congratulations own earning your role as Senior Class President for the upcoming school year. Which part of the role are you most excited about? I am beyond excited to be Senior Class President next year, largely because I get to be in charge of all the senior activities for my last year of high school. I love the class of 2023 so much that I want to make sure our last year of high school is a memorable one that is fun for everyone. I'm so grateful that I was elected Senior Class President and I am really looking forward to planning the various games such as water assassins, and I know my grade is very competitive so I think it will be really fun to see it play out. Other things like senior prank, ditch day, senior sunset and sunrise, is what really makes senior year the most unforgettable one and getting to plan all these various activities is extremely exciting for me. This past year, I have gotten to work with my grade a lot more than in previous years, and the bonding I have already seen our grade do this year is what really makes me excited for senior year.

10 ACTIVITIES FOR YOUR SUMMER BUCKETLIST

Murial Buran
EDITOR

1. Road Trip to San Francisco

If you are wanting to escape our small town on the coast, San Francisco is a great destination for a look into city life. With an array of good foods, from fresh clam chowder at Fisherman's Wharf to authentic dim sum in Chinatown, the city always has a bite for your cravings. There are so many shopping opportunities, especially vintage shopping near Little Italy that can be super fun for finding your summer wardrobe. If you are willing to bear the 6-hour drive, visiting San Francisco with your friends is a way to experience a new environment in another California city.

2. Claude Monnet Immersive Experience Los Angeles

The brand-new exhibit coming to Los Angeles this spring is the Claude Monnet Immersive Experience which is a 360-degree digital spectacle that brings to life the artist's iconic impressionist artwork. The whole tour would only take around an hour and is perfect for escaping the heat of the summer day. Bring some friends and have a life-changing multisensual journey.

3. Dinner reservations at Elephante

As seen from every social media star, this restaurant in Santa Monica is perfect for not just a dinner, but a whole experience. The rooftop restaurant has amazing views of the ocean that accentuates the minimalist interior with a luxurious ambiance. The restaurant is an awesome spot for a nice dinner, dressing up, and eating amazing Italian American food. It can make you feel like a wannabe influencer but it is a part of the experience.

4. Farmers Markets

As popular as the Melrose Flea market is, the farmer's market is just as fun and extremely underrated. Providing fresh fruits, veggies, pastries, and so much more. Cheaper than LA's favorite grocery stores like Erewhon, the farmer's markets are an awesome way to save money but still have a great time. They are fun way to spend your Sunday or Saturday morning with friends and family.

5. Camping in Big Sur

Recounting from personal experience, Big Sur is an amazing place to camp in the summertime. A few hours away from Malibu, the other coastal town has amazing views and awesome campgrounds. It may be out of some people's comfort zones but it is for sure a good way to spend some time outside. If not willing to bring a food supply, the town of Big Sur carries a wide range of local restaurants that all are close to the camp grounds.

6. Explore Laguna

Laguna is a town filled with so many hidden gems that would be such a fun weekend trip. It has amazing natural wonders like hot springs, waterfalls, hikes looking over the water, and cold springs. Along with cool art galleries and famous international delicacies such as Cassava and Ube. The beaches are beautiful if you want to change up a beach summer day at a new destination.

7. Book a Flight

If in your budget, booking a flight to your destination of choice is always a fun idea to try and do this summer. Even if your dream destination is just an hour long flight away or maybe a two day trip on a few different connecting flights, finally getting to get a personal experience in a new environment. Hopefully your trip meets your expectations!

8. Coffee from Menotti's Venice

Menotti's is a must-do on your summer bucket list, even if you just take a quick stop on your way to other bucket list goals, that cup of coffee will not disappoint. The iconic coffee shop has two destinations near Malibu, being in Venice and Los Angeles, so choose your spot and pick from their range of drinks. They are mostly known for their Spanish and vegan Spanish Latte which has a mix of cinnamon and vanilla that work so well together.

9. Visit Catalina

A California Island is only a boat ride away! Catalina's crystal clear waters, and fun seafood restaurants are perfect for a relaxing trip with some friends or family. The spot has cute little hotels that highlight the history of the island and is short of the craziness of Los Angeles. You can even spend a few hours on a self-given golf cart tour seeing 360 degree views of the surrounding waters. Or, take a zip line ride across the island. Tan, swim, explore, and enjoy yourself.

10. Watch the sunrise

Find a look out spot in Malibu, maybe in Point Dume or at the Bluffs, and wake up early one day this summer! It's such a fun experience to put in the effort, grab a coffee, pick up some friends, (make sure to bring warm clothes), and enjoy the sunrise. You can even bring a bathing suit to hop into the water to start your day right.

THE BEST GO KARTING TRACK

Colten Fisher
STAFF WRITER

When it comes to going go-karting when you live in Malibu, you don't have a lot of options on where you're able to go. The closest and best option is "K1 Speed", a franchise with the closest location being in Thousand Oaks. It is relatively new, which means it has a freshly done interior with an advanced arcade and racing seats around the building to sit in. The carts are electric carts but that doesn't mean they are too slow, as they are more than capable of going around turns as fast as possible without losing control. Some of the carts are better than others; one of the employees there even mentioned that the older carts are able to go faster because the new ones have governors, which are pieces of technology that limit how fast you are able to go. Another essential factor contributing to whether or not your cart is capable of winning are the tires. Your tires can change how you have to approach every turn because with bad tires you can slide a lot easier resulting in a slower time. If K1 speed is not the right place for you, there's other options such as MB2 and Racers Edge Indoor Karting (R.E.I.K); both are good options but require a longer drive coming from Malibu. R.E.I.K has its closest location to Malibu in Gardena, and MB2 is further away with a location out in Sylmar. Each place you go to has a different track which changes the way that you drive and for some, can make-or-break the overall experience. K1 speed in Thousand Oaks has a variety of different types of turns to keep you engaged in the race, from the straights to the hairpins. Next time you want to go go-karting, K1 speed is the most convenient option as the reasonable drive and overall cleanliness make it an ultimately very enjoyable experience, as well as the fact that you can order food and drinks and also compare your lap times with friends on the time sheets they print out for you after each race. However, if you can't make it to K1, the variety of other amazing tracks will ensure you have an unforgettable go-karting experience.

Everything You Need to Know About the 2022 Met Gala

Noelle Weeger
EDITOR

The Met Gala is arguably the most significant event in the fashion industry throughout the year; held annually on the first Sunday of May, at the Metropolitan Art Museum. Vogue throws the Gala as an extravagant event to raise money for the costume institute as the Met. The guest list consists of the most prestigious and renowned celebrities such as Rihanna, Lady Gaga, Kim Kardashian, and many more. Every year follows through with a new and unique theme. This year is classified by the New York Times as “Gilded Glamor” in honor of the current installment in the costume institute which is, “In America: An Anthology of Fashion”. As usual, the event will be led by Anna Wintour, chief editor of Conde Nast and Vogue America. Alongside many star-studded hosts. The host. One of the most anticipated parts of the event is the star-studded hosts and their glamorous outfits. The extravagant designers and brilliant taste applied to this theme. This year’s hosts will be Blake Lively, Ryan Reynolds, Regina King, and Lin-Manuel Miranda. For Blake Lively, this will not be her first Met, as she has already attended 9. The co-chairs will partake in activities such as the guest list, menu, decor, and “general energy of the evening”. While the co-chairs seem to be a key component of this event, one can’t deny the true importance of fashion. The outfits. What exactly is “Gilded Glamor”, and how will these celebs approach the broad theme? Gilded Glamor will bring out extravagant, political, and bold fashion statements. As stated by Vogue, “last year’s theme felt lackluster to many, this year’s is sure to bring them — for lack of a better term — glamor”. The dress code set out following the theme is “white tie”. Although this has been stated many times renowned celebs go against and out of their way to break this dress code. Now the Met Gala has occurred and there is much to say. While the theme was “gilded glamor” and “In America: An Anthology of Fashion”, many went away from this theme. While host Blake Lively, embodied the colors of the statue liberty and Kim Kardashian wore Marilyn Monroe original “Happy Birthday Mr. President” dress, other celebrities veered far from the theme. Hailey Bieber channeled an old time Hollywood star look, while Emily Ratajowski confused many with her approach to the highly anticipated theme. Overall, many were disappointed as said by Murial Burian “Overall, nobody was on theme and I’m disappointed in the Met Gala”.

IT'S TIME TO LISTEN TO THE EXPERTS

Every horror movie that has anything to do with natural events starts with scientists trying to warn people about the end of the world, and nobody listens. Starting years ago, with possibly the most well-known being Greta Thunberg, scientists and activists have been passionately speaking about the impending effects of climate change and the rapid speed at which they are occurring. The most recent significant event regarding the attempt to spread awareness of climate change happened on April 6, 2022, when a group of NASA scientists chained themselves to the door of a JP Morgan Chase building in a desperate attempt to make people listen to the warnings. In a small speech given by Peter Kalmus, one of the scientists who participated in the protest, he said, “we are going to lose everything...this is so much bigger than any of us”. After facing arrest due to their protest, Kalmus and the other scientists were released and Kalmus tweeted new information. Kalmus tweeted that they chose to host the protest at the Chase building because Chase Bank funds more new fossil fuel projects than any other bank. A recently released report shows that the emissions from the current fossil fuel industries have already increased past twice the amount that it takes to push the planet over 1.5 degrees C of global heating. The evidence is clear: record high temperatures, droughts, and people who benefit from and further the advancement of global warming are oblivious to warnings that something has to change. The start of 2021 movie, “Don’t Look Up” is this exact situation but with a different disaster; a scientist trying to warn people that something horrible is about to happen, but nobody listens, and then they all die. There is no time more vital than the present to allocate our resources and attention to stopping the progression of climate change, and to do so we must listen to those who, like Peter Kalmus and the other scientists at the JP Morgan Chase Bank protest, and change the way we interact with the planet that gives us life.

Even as the end of the school year approaches, the workload seems to continue to pile up as the drive to do it declines. AP Tests, finals, and big projects loom over the prospect of a long summer, but they don't have to. Here are the tips to survive the end of the year and get the last but often hardest parts of school finished.

Procrastination: One of the worst issues that plagues students towards the end of the year is procrastination, as students begin to feel the pressure of work and keep it out of mind until the last minute. Procrastination of work leads to rushed work, a worse work ethic, and sleepless nights from cramming. In order to avoid this, break up your work into its parts, and make a list or schedule in order to divide out your work or break it up. When you understand your task better you can break it down into its parts, allowing you to work more efficiently, even if you end up doing it later. Don't think too highly or overestimate the amount of work you have; the pressure and dread of the work can often make you push it back.

Sleep: One of the biggest contributing factors to succeeding in anything you do is getting quality sleep. Without a nights rest, you focus less in class, get work done slower and with less understanding, and often take longer to do basic tasks, and in some cases the time wasted can lead to less sleep if you can't complete your tasks on time. Almost always it's more important to prioritize your sleep, even over school work in most cases. The bit of work maintain a healthy school life balance while dealing with the stresses of the end of the year is to maintain balance. Don't let yourself get crushed by the pressure of the end of the year, and remember that sudden changes to your diet, schedule, hobbies, or school can negatively affect your performance in school. Continue doing things for yourself after school and don't let school run you down too much, you miss can be made up by the efficiency of a well slept body.

Balance: The best way to as a happier, healthier you can do work more efficiently than a burnout version of you.

Evolution of the YOUNGER GENERATIONS

Helena Joujon-Roche

Evolution is something that has been happening constantly, but a lot of people have sparked an interest in the evolution of 6th graders today from 6th graders 5 years ago. Many things have impacted middle schoolers such as social media, the pandemic and lockdown.

When people tend to talk about the pandemic's effects on our youth, there is a common feeling that much of our own youth as well as the youth of the younger generations has been lost. This idea has become clearly evident in the appearance and actions of the youngest middle school generations, and as Malibu High's AJ added, "the difference is the pandemic". A lot of people touched on this subject because they feel that many of the newer generations, such as Malibu Middle School's 6th graders, have changed because of both the pandemic, and social media. Another 9th grader Allegra also has seen a big difference "they are dressing different and acting different as well" -Allegra Barzan.

Many seniors also talked about how they are confused to see that 6th graders are looking more and more like they are meant to be in highschool. As one senior said, "they think they are more mature and it's a little weird seeing 6th graders act like they are in highschool" - Camille Annet.

Many people agree with this opinion because comparing ourselves when we were at the age of just entering middle school to the current sixth and seventh graders, it is clear that there is a huge difference in the way the generations acted and grew; "their style has changed and kids now are more advanced with learning so they know more, you would never catch a 6th grader 5 or 10 years ago doing what 6th graders do today"(Chris Vargas). Chris is a security guard for our school who has seen a huge difference in not only the appearances of the younger generations but also their actions and personality, which have been heavily impacted by social media.

We have seen evolution now more than ever not only in the appearances but in personality and actions kids perform, and , I'm curious to see how 6th graders are in another 5 to 10 years.
